President Kennedy yesterday added Clark M. Clifford and Gordon Gray as members of the Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board.

Clifford is a Washington attorney who served as Mr. Kennedy's representative to the Eisenhower Administration to smooth out the transfer of powers.

Gray, a North Carolinian, has held various high Government posts. His last one was special assistant to former President Dwight D. Eisenhower for national security affairs.

The Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board, reactivated recently, has the responsibility of reviewing activities of the Central Intelligence Agency and other foreign intelligence work and making recommendations to the President.

The Board is headed by James R. Killian Jr., chairman of the corporation of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.
